ARCHITECTURE & BUILT ENVIRONMENT
Building Design
Interior Design

Besides protection from the elements, a well-designed building also promotes the wellbeing of its occupants. Through project-based learning and real client briefs, build your architectural design skills in sustainable design, drafting and technical documentation before transforming your design ideas into reality through industrial 3D printers, virtual and mixed reality. Or, start sketching your career in interior decoration and design and explore the different hard materials and soft furnishing textiles in a variety of interiors and spaces. Join the ranks of our award-winning students who have curated impressive portfolios of projects for clients and employers.

Turn your hobby into a career with our Horticulture and Floristry courses. Holmesglen's landscape design courses enable you to design landscapes for a range of residential and public spaces such as community estates, commercial exteriors and even golf courses. Our Floristry courses will have you working with fresh flowers daily, to create mood and ambience for displays. Students proudly take part in projects run jointly with industry partners and are regular winners at the Melbourne International Flower and Garden Show and the WildFlowers Australia Competition. Our range of courses include arboriculture, landscape construction and design, conservation, and sports turf management.
